At 10 o'clock last evening an alarm of fire was turned in from box No. 5, United engine house, and at the same time the heavens over the lower part of the city were brightly illuminated. The general supposition was that one of the mills was on fire and a big rush ensued for the Fifth ward. The property destroyed was a wooden stable belonging to the Riverside Iron Works, situated on the river bank between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets, and valued, with its contents, at about $200. The blaze was first discovered by John Hollman, Jr., who turned in the alarm. The blaze was first discovered by John Hollman, Jr., who turned in the alarm. The excursion up the river Tuesday on the steamer Little Anna was a glorious success as far as the excursionists were concerned, although their friends were in a frenzy of horror when the news first reached the city of the Scioto-Lomas disaster, as it was thought that, the Lomas and Little Anna being Martin's Ferry packets there had been some mistake made in the name. The party, about forty in anumber, including several ladies and gentlemen visiting in the city, left the leve at 645, having on board plenty of warm wraps and a large number of well filled baskets of good things. OPENING OF THE ANNUAL SESSION THE Vigilant engine broke a spring going the fire last night. introductory Address by the President, P. W. M Work on the public library is progressin rapidly, and it will be open by the end of this month. ris-The Visiting Strangers Welcomed by ness Matters Sprung Before It. The State Press Association met yest in annual session, in the Opera House in this city. The members had gathered in to a reectable number by two o'clock, and a fe inutes after that hour, the President, Mr. 2. W. Morris, of the Bitchie Gazette, Harris-

rille, called the meeting to order, and opene he session with an INTRODUCTORY ADDRESS.

Mr. Morris said:

Mr. Morris said:

The material for every great and noble work first lies in chaos. No universe ever bloomed with light and life from the hand of a creating God, that was not wrought from a chaotic state. The purest statue that ever shone in beauty, was once a mass of rude stone. Before you, my brethern, may be upbuilded a glittering monument that shall represent alike progress and prosperity, benefit and beneficence, influence for you and wealth for your people. Yours is the grasp that holds the chisel; yours the master hand that must lay its foundation and bear the structure.

no better comparison than to call it a blind giant—yet that might become its own magician, open its own eyes and teach itself its own strongth. I have known its power for years; yet that is a power that has been unused, unknown and unthought of by its members generally. No appeal, no entreaty has moved it from its lethargy.

Now hearken to me; you individual members. The Press of the State is the power of the State. Arouse to this fact. Pinch yourselves and see that you are awake. I have stood by and seen you in your laughing, careless indifference, and heard you remark that the Press Association is of no benefit except as a social gathering. This is a mistake. Yea, it is a phenomenon. It is a strange unrealization of the situation. It is this that makes me say you are a problem to me. O thou good natured, patient, sleeping giant, give yourself one good shake and you will move the State.

Think of a hundred newspapers united, and tell me that they will not be the controlling influence in West Virginia! Absurd to intimate the contrary! It is for you to make and unmake politicians; it is for you to heald progress and prosperit; it is for you to disseminate intelligence and cultivate ilber-to intimate the contrary; it is for you to make and unmake politicians; it is for you to herald progress and prosperity; it is for you to disseminate intelligence and cultivate liberality; it is for you, in short to educate and control the people. It is time for you to know that you own the State. Take it and control it. Yet, if you would know the secret of all your power, learn it. It is never to contend for anything but that which is true and right. There is yet an infinity of undiscovered truth. It is only as pioneers in that direction that you can lead the people.

But, my brothers, I know that much of your skepticism in regard to the Press Association is departing. In the glittering cast the golden day arises flue morn is at hand. The giant lies slumbering still: but only with lightly closed eyes and half-relaxed muscles. A murmur, a touch and he shall spring forth to the labors of the day. The time of mwakening, I verily believe, is at hand. And let me say to every one of you, a part of this power, that you are to take no grasp unon decaying flesh, but to seize your brother's strong are, and unite with him answerker.

power, that you are to take no grasp upon decaying flesh, but to seize your brother's strong arm, and united with him, murch forward with him in the work.

And let me say right here the Press Association, will never be what it ought to be, until you make it so. You must attend. You must appreciate your privilege in doing so. For a newspaper man to come here and never utter a word, is to do good. His presence is an encouragement, and an assurance that he is in earnest. Whenever every newspaper in West Virginia sends up a representative to the Press Association you will see the politicians pull off their hats and hold them under their arms, and the year after you will see a railroad penetrating to the very mountain fastnessess of your state, and in the next six months you will hear the shout of begrimed laborers beneath your hills, and behold ascending the smoke from furnaces, and shall known that capital and inmigration are coming into West Virginia, and that her wealth is paying for it all.

Yet, thank heaven, we have progressed. Not many years ago, even here in Wheeling, the daily struggled with existence was printed on an old hand press, and by stric economy eked out a scanty maintenance and by the hardest struggle lived. A dozen years ago, no paper was published in any county touching the one in which I am located with one trenched to-day. And some gortous sammer morning, while the light glints the east, while the fragrant breath of the mountain flowers is wafted on the breeze, while the silvery streams go marmuring down their rocky pathways, some intrepid youth will brush the dew from the laurel and the junshersy bush, and baring his arms shall pull the lever of a printing press on the summit of McDowell county, the one that not long ago neversent in its returns of the Presidential shallow until two years, or thereabout, after ion until two years, or thereabout, at ay of inauguration. Then, my brethr sat with us for many years, is not with us. Unknown to many of you, let me say that he was worthy of your friendship. Theodore F. Fague was an honor to the Press of West Virginia. Upon him God had stamped His image. You will no doubt pass graceful and appropriate tribute to his memory, and with you I leave that duty.

At the conclusion of his remarks President Morris presented Mr. A. W. Campbell, of the Intelligences, who made a brief

The Presidont briefly responded, accepting

Fourth Street Church, Yesterday morning a very quiet but a ver pleasant and elegant wedding took place r the hour struck the doors of the south alse were thrown open and to the music of the delightful old weeding march, the bridal pair swept up the aisle, preceded by the ushers, who ranged themselves on either side of the altar. Mr. J. M. Garber, is visiting Mrs. erren. As Miss Woodrow she was a t Joseph Ryan, who is to buried this fore-tion from his late home in Wellsville, was me of Bellatre's best known citizens years go. He paid a visit to Bellaire not long light.

The father of O. C. Adair, the Market street procer, came in from his home near Ozark, Monroe County, to spend his Fourth of July with his son in Bellaire. He was seized with paralysis however, yesterday morning, and died in a very short time.

A number went up from here yesterday to see the wreck of the Scioto. Most went from curiosity, but several had a deeper interest in the matter. A sister of Mr. Frank Arnett left Wellaville by that boat to spend her Fourth here, and has not been neard from since. He went up last night. Mr. Howell, of Bridgeport, was here the other day, and standing on the B. & O. bridge at the depot, he said he could not recognize anything to remind him of the time, before anything to remind him of the time, before the war, when he was engaged in transferring the mail across the river here, before a bridge was thought of. When he lirst came here the house farthest north in town was the old church, now the Second Ward school house, which is about to to be torn down. There were two or three other houses on the site of the upper part of Beliaire, one of them near the ferry landing, the County road running along the river, in front of the house. Both the road and the site of the house have long been washed away. MARTIN'S PERRY.

Police business was very brisk yesterday, out there was nothing worthy of especial nention.

Messrs. Robt, Kerr, Chas, Swartz, Anderson Ralston, Russelt Medill and other of our town boys are absent on a fishing trip, in the neighborhood of Adena. A number of new nailers and feeders from Pittsburgh and other points are arriving, and there is a general opinion prevailing that the Laughlin mill will soon be in operation.

The disaster at Mingo was the principal heme of conversation yesterday. The opin-on is unanimous among the passengers on he Lomas that the fault of the accident was with the Scioto. with the Scioto.

Our people were very much delighted with the handsome display by the ladies of Bellaire who accompanied Spangler Pest on their visit to our G. A. R. pienie. The concert was a very pretty one, and the Bellaire boys should feel proud of the noble supportigiven them by the patriotic young ladies of that city.

The Grand Army picnic on the Fourth was an immense affair, in spite of the rain, Spangler's Post, of Bellaire, and Brannum Post of Bridgeport, were present in large force, and representatives were present.

Spangler's Post, of Bellaire, and Brannum Post of Bridgeport, were present in large force, and representatives were present from Drummond Post, of St. Clairsville, Hazlett Post, of Zanesville, Abe Patterson Post, of Allegheny City, Pa., and Lyle Post 128, Allegheny City. The Alleghenians were entertained by Thoburn Post, at the Sherman House, during their stay.

The announcement, late Wednesday evening, that the Seioto and Lomas had collided, and that many lives had been lost, spread through the town with great rapidity, and many of our people who had friends and relatives on the Lomas were in a sad state of anxiety and grief. As soon as it was learned that a locomotive and car would be dispatched from Wheeling to the scene, a number of gentlemen made preparations to accompany the train, with such restoratives and wraps as it was thought might be needed. Happily, however, a later announcement that that wever, a later announcement that the mas and all her passengers were safe re ved the ceneral
